The Espada represents one of the most important advances made by Automobili Ferruccio Lamborghini S.p.A. for it combines high performance motoring with the ability to carry four passengers in luxurious comfort together with luggage. The Espada is also the first Lamborghini to incorporate a combined body and chassis in place of a separate frame. Noise and vibration have also been eliminated.

Although a heavy car because of luxurious fittings and noise-heat-vibration insulation - 2,795 lbs - top speed of the Espada is an exciting 152 mph with through-the-gears performance to match.

The V12 uprated four litre engine gives a maximum 350 bhp at 6,500 rpm. It has a seven main bearing crankshaft with two connecting rods per crank. Distribution is by four overhead camshafts driven by two silent chains. Six twin choke Weber carburettors are fed by electric fuel pump.

Magnesium alloy wheels are fitted with 205 x 15 Cinturato textile radial ply tyres and the car has a petrol tank capacity of 21 Imperial gallons.
